ABOUT AGRISOL 2027

AgriSol 2027, the International Congress on Regenerative Agriculture, Agronomy and Soil Health, invites researchers, farmers, agronomists, soil scientists, policymakers, agribusiness leaders, and students from around the world to gather in Rome, Italy, from June 17 to 19, 2027. Offered as a hybrid event with full online participation, this congress brings together global expertise to address one of the most urgent challenges of our time: restoring the health of our soils and building a more sustainable, resilient future for agriculture. Whether you join us in the historic heart of Rome or connect from anywhere in the world, AgriSol 2027 offers a unique platform to share knowledge, exchange ideas, and accelerate the worldwide transition toward regenerative farming systems.

Soil is the living foundation of food production, yet vast areas of farmland are losing fertility, structure, and biological vitality. AgriSol 2027 responds to this challenge by placing regenerative agronomy, soil health, and modern agronomy at the center of the conversation. Through keynote lectures, expert panels, scientific sessions, and interactive workshops, the congress explores practical, science-backed approaches to revitalizing degraded land, improving crop productivity, conserving water, and strengthening resilience against a changing climate. Participants will discover how living, well-managed soils can capture carbon, support biodiversity, and produce more nutritious food while keeping farms profitable and viable for generations to come.

The program spans the full breadth of regenerative science and practice, covering soil health assessment and soil microbiology, no-till and conservation tillage, cover cropping and diverse crop rotations, agroforestry and silvopasture, composting and organic amendments, soil organic carbon management, precision agriculture and digital soil monitoring, water-smart farming, carbon sequestration, biodiversity and ecosystem services, and the policy and economic frameworks that drive real-world adoption. By connecting cutting-edge research with hands-on field experience, AgriSol 2027 bridges the gap between scientific discovery and on-farm practice, ensuring that every participant gains insights they can apply in their own work.

Hosted in Rome, a historic center of Mediterranean agriculture and home to leading global food institutions, AgriSol 2027 provides an inspiring setting for meaningful scientific exchange, while its hybrid format extends that experience to a truly global audience through live-streamed sessions, virtual presentations, and online networking. More than a conference, AgriSol 2027 is a movement toward a healthier and more resilient food future, and we warmly invite you to submit your research, share your expertise, and become part of a worldwide community committed to regenerating the planet's soils. Mark your calendar for June 17 to 19, 2027, and join us in Rome and online to help shape the future of regenerative agriculture, agronomy, and soil health.
